

SPRING 2013

What is art, really, if it isn't poetry for the eyes?

Dear Members & Friends,

Looking over the calendar and our current special exhibitions, I can't help but notice how poetry has emerged as a theme at Maryhill this spring. From our special exhibition The Hound of Heaven — inspired by the religious poem of the same name by English poet Francis Thompson — to our annual Poem in Your Pocket Day and a Family Fun event scheduled for April, poetry is everywhere. And what is art, really, if it isn't poetry for the eyes? Here at the museum, we are constantly looking for and making these sorts of connections, whether it is between our visitors and the art on view or shared moments among a group enjoying their time together at the museum. We bring in artists so they can connect with audiences, and we provide links back to our exhibitions through the programs we present. I'm so excited about the programs we are able to offer this season. Take a look and see how you'll connect.

Speaking of connections, a special collaboration resulted in our new logo — which you see debuting this month. We worked with students at Pacific Northwest College of Art, and their instructors, Paul Platosh and Jason Resch, to develop a fresh, contemporary insignia for the museum. The students visited Maryhill, asked thoughtful questions about who we are, what we would like to be, and how we'd like to be seen by the public. They were brimming with fabulous ideas and enthusiasm for the project. We are so grateful for their diligence and thrilled with the final product; I hope you are as well. To really make our new logo shine, we've re-vamped our website to complement it. Take a look at maryhillmuseum.org. I would like to extend a special thank you to the students at PNCA and their instructors; Rain Agency of Portland; Maryhill's Marketing Committee; the museum's webmaster Cynthia Henschell of Cascadia Graphics and Publishing; Rachel Bucci, the museum's media and public relations officer; and graphic designer Liz Kingslien for refining the logo and developing a style guide to unify our print and digital materials.

Looking forward to seeing you this season.

THE HOUND OF HEAVEN

R.H. Ives Gammell's A Pictorial Sequence Painted by R. H. Ives Gammell Based on The Hound of Heaven series is based on "The Hound of Heaven," a 182-line religious poem by English poet Francis Thompson (1859-1907). Gammell began making plans to execute the pictorial sequence during World War II and completed it in 1956. The 23 large paintings incorporate symbols drawn from C.G. Jung, primitive and medieval cultures, and biblical and mythological sources.

The Hound of Heaven exhibit and related programs is supported by the R.H. Gammell Trust Fund. The fund was established in 2000 to support the care and conservation, exhibits and education of the public concerning the series "The Hound" by R.H. Ives Gammell.

March 15 – November 15, 2013

KENNETH STANDHARDT: IMPRESSIONS

Kenneth Standhardt is a Eugene, Oregon-based ceramic artist who creates intricately patterned stoneware vessels using everyday kitchen tools. See cover.

ARTHUR HIGGINS: PRINTS

The late Arthur Higgins (1942-2011) was a prolific sculptor, painter and printmaker. He spent much of his career in Alaska, where he completed more than 40 public art commissions. Higgins moved to Mosier, Oregon, in 1986 and produced many kinetic sculptures, two of which are in the collection of Maryhill Museum of Art. This exhibition features more than 25 of Higgins' lithographs and woodblock prints—many of which depict Pacific Northwest landscapes, plants and bird species.

CHESS CREATIONS IN CLAY

Advanced ceramics students from The Dalles Wahtonka High School exhibit chess sets inspired by their imaginations under the direction of their art instructor Penny Wallace.

In Memoriam, 2012

Over the past year, Maryhill has lost a number of valued friends. These were champions of the museum who gave generously to help make it a better place. Some served on the board or planning committees. Some volunteered for the museum's education programs, sharing their knowledge through lectures, school tours, or helping to steward Maryhill's ranch lands. What they all had in common was a passion for the museum and a strong desire to share it with others. All will be deeply missed.

Looking Ahead: Adult Art Workshops

August 10 & 11, 2013
10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily

WORKSHOP: ENCAUSTIC PAINTING

This technique, which involves using heated beeswax colored with pigment, dates back over 2,000 years and was used by many 20th-century artists including Jasper Johns, Paul Klee and Wassily Kandinsky; the process continues to fascinate artists today. Immerse yourself in this versatile medium with instruction from encaustic artists Manuela Kalestiantz and Robyn Andersen. Participants will explore encaustic coloring, layering, pouring, monoprinting and combining encaustic with other materials.

Cost: $300 members / $325 non-members. All supplies, lunch and snacks are included. A deposit of $100 is due by June 8, 2013. The remainder of the registration fee is due on June 29, 2013. To register call 509.773.3733 or email education@maryhillmuseum.org.

September 10 - 14, 2013

ICON PAINTING WORKSHOP WITH REVEREND DEACON MATTHEW GARRETT

Explore the rich history and elaborate religious symbolism associated with painted icons during this hands-on workshop with accomplished icon painter Reverend Deacon Matthew Garrett. The Deesis: St. John the Baptist is the prototype for the icon that participants will paint from start to finish during the workshop. No previous art experience is necessary.

Cost: $400.00 members / $425 non-members. All supplies, lunch and snacks are provided. A deposit of $200 is due by July 26, 2013. To register call 509.773.3733 or email education@maryhillmuseum.org.

We are thrilled to offer two in-depth workshops exploring two different art techniques. Both are appropriate for all skill levels.
