

Dear Friends,

It's that time of year when Maryhill bustles with activity. Day-trippers, families on annual vacations, RV'ers, bikers, hikers and campers stop in for an art fix, enlivening the galleries, taking in the views and exploring the new exhibitions. It's also the time of year when we make heavy use of our outdoor spaces. In July we'll host Portland Actors Ensemble for a performance of The Taming of the Shrew. Blankets and picnic baskets form a patchwork quilt on the grass, and under the shade of near 75-year-old elms, cares of modern life melt away as the audience gets swept up in the setting and the story. It's a magical event that we always look forward to hosting.

In July we'll open an exhibition of woodblock prints by Andrea Rich. Her work is striking—filled with vibrant color, strong lines and varied textures—and brings into focus the natural world. It's a show that literally brings the outside in.

Another reason to visit this summer is our Théâtre de la Mode exhibition, featuring couture fashions of post-World War II France. It has been reinstalled with portions of three sets and more than 80 new ensembles. This exhibition is a delight to explore from head to toe. Formal gowns, daywear, footwear, hats and accessories by renowned designers such as Nina Ricci, Schiaparelli, Pierre Balmain, Hermès, and Charles Montaigne, just to name a few, are rendered in exquisite detail, illuminating fashions past and present. It's amazing how many of these designs are absolutely timeless.

Finally, I encourage you to consider attending our annual gala. What in the Sam Hill? The Maryhill Gala is held on the plaza overlooking the Gorge. It's guaranteed to be a festive evening filled with delicious local foods and wines, good company and an opportunity to bid on a variety of one-of-a-kind packages in support of the museum. Details are on page 7.

When you are planning your summer getaways, I hope you'll include a stop at Maryhill; our doors are always open!

OPENING JULY 11

AN ABUNDANCE OF RICHES: WOODCUTS OF ANDREA RICH

Explore 40 prints by internationally-recognized printmaker Andrea Rich, who delves into both art and nature. Rich draws on print traditions as diverse as Albrecht Dürer and Japanese Ukiyo-e to produce work that is distinctly her own, carving from six to twenty blocks for one final image; the results are strong, clear impressions of life in all its diversity. During three decades of travel, the Santa Cruz, California-based artist has observed common and exotic species of birds and animals, and used first-hand experiences to show her subjects in their natural habitats. Some of the flora and fauna found in these prints are also found on the 5,300-acre grounds of Maryhill.

All of the works on view are drawn from the collection of the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum in Wausau, Wisconsin. The exhibition at Maryhill Museum of Art is sponsored by John and Laura Cheney.

Andrea Rich will be at Maryhill on Thursday, July 23 at 6:30 p.m. to present The Art of Woodcut Printmaking: An Illustrated Lecture. For details, see page 10.

EDUCATION CENTER EXHIBITIONS HIGHLIGHT THE TALENTS OF REGIONAL STUDENTS

With the opening in 2012 of the museum's M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust Education Center, Maryhill has been able to provide a venue for regional art instructors and their students (of all ages) to exhibit artwork.

One such student is Dot Young, a 15-year-old sophomore at The Dalles High School. Dot was one of the very talented students whose work was on view this spring. Here she is pictured with her work, "Blackfish," a plasma cut sheet of steel that she ground and polished by hand; Dot says she was inspired by Native American artwork and depictions of the Orca whale. It is the first of a series of tribal art inspired pieces. Dot sells her work and uses the money she makes to buy more metal. She is interested in pursuing welding as a trade after high school.

STUDIO PLAY

M.J. MURDOCK CHARITABLE TRUST EDUCATION CENTER

Tell your friends you have art on exhibit at Maryhill Museum! We provide the materials and you create the masterpiece inspired by works of art at Maryhill—from the Rodin Gallery to American Indian works, the Théâtre de la Mode and beyond. Tear, squeeze and fold foil to create sculptural pieces, fantastical animals, kings and queens, or create a portrait or still life with new drawing techniques. Afterwards, hang your work of art for the world to see! We will even provide a museum label for your artwork, which will remain on view the M.J. Murdock Charitable Trust Education Center. Don't forget to take a selfie and let the world know you are "on exhibit" at Maryhill! #maryhillstudio

FAMILY FUN AT MARYHILL

Families with children of all ages will find a variety of ways to explore Maryhill Museum of Art, inside and out. Use one of four Art Discovery Activity Guides (Maryhill Favorites, Sculpture, The Eye Of Rodin, Columbia River People) to look closely and pose questions as you explore the museum together. Show your completed activity guide at the front desk and receive a free postcard. Reflect on your visit, create something fun, read an art book or play a game in the museum's dedicated kid zone, the EyeSEE Activity Room. Located on the museum's upper level, this space features kid-friendly exhibits and artwork by children from throughout the region. Both the Activity Guides and EyeSEE Activity Room are sponsored by Judy Lackstrom and Robert Morrow. Learn more about these and other opportunities on our website, maryhillmuseum.org, under LEARN.

ONLINE RESOURCES AND SCHOOL TOURS AMONG EDUCATION OFFERINGS AT MARYHILL

Did you know that Maryhill offers a selection of downloadable lesson plans developed by the museum's curator of education? Six different lessons explore art concepts, vocabulary, genres and techniques that are adaptable to a variety of grade levels and can be used as a stand-alone classroom lesson or in conjunction with a school tour of the museum. Download the plans at maryhillmuseum.org/discover/for-educators/lesson-plans.

The museum also offers special discounts for K-12 school groups and accompanying educational programs, by appointment Monday–Friday. Themes include the Columbia River People, the sculpture of Rodin, chess sets, Stonehenge and a general art exploration program. Educational programs are approximately 30-45 minutes long. After the program, students may explore the museum with their chaperones.

For more information, or to make arrangements, call 509.773.3733 ext. 25 or email education@maryhillmuseum.org.

MUSEUM RECEIVES MAJOR ADDITION TO NATIVE AMERICAN COLLECTIONS

A multi-generational family collection of approximately 100 American Indian items from the Columbia River Gorge area was recently donated to Maryhill. The gift includes about 45 Columbia River baskets (berry baskets, sally bags and cornhusk bags), 16 beaded bags, a number of non-Plateau baskets, and miscellaneous other Plateau items.

The collection was begun by John G. Wyers (1870–1960) of White Salmon, Washington, who managed the Columbia Fruit Union, a hardware and general merchandise co-op serving Mid-Columbia growers; after purchasing the business in the early 1930s, he changed its name to the Wyers Trading Company. During that time, he began to purchase basketry—particularly Klikitat-made items—and was known to be a fair dealer, purchasing baskets outright or making loans on them if the weavers desired. He also encouraged many Mid-Columbia River-area weavers to keep their traditional arts alive.

After Wyers' death in 1960, the collection transferred to his only child, Teunis J. Wyers, Sr., and in the 1970s it passed to Wyers' wife, Lucile Annette Wyers, who continued adding to it. Teunis and Lucile's children, Jan Wyers, Teunis J. Wyers, Jr. and Karen Wyers Robertson, inherited the collection in 2014. Recognizing the significant cultural heritage represented by the objects, Teunis and Jan acquired their sister's share and chose to donate the collection to Maryhill in its entirety.

All of the baskets in the collection were made before 1940, and during the 1980s, Lucile Wyers began working with Klikitat basket-makers Elsie Thomas and Nettie Jackson to identify individual makers. As a result of their efforts, the makers of nearly three-quarters of the baskets are now known; most of them were members of the Hunt, Cayuse and Thomas families from the Husum, Washington area.

"We are grateful to Teunis and Jan for their extreme generosity and for choosing Maryhill as the repository for this collection," says Maryhill's curator of art Steve Grafe. "Many of the objects will go on view in the museum's Native American Gallery beginning in March 2016; we look forward to sharing this important collection of local Indian material with our public."

Holli Francis

NEW TRUSTEES ELECTED

At the museum's annual meeting of the membership on May 16, several new Trustees were elected. Among those are new board member Holli Francis. She and her husband Bob have resided in Hood River since 2004. Holli holds degrees in Media Communication and Communication Arts and spent 11 years in broadcast news as both an on-air reporter and news director in Pennsylvania and Ohio. She worked for the past eight years in workforce development for Mid-Columbia Council of Governments, and recently became the Director of Programs for The Next Door, Inc., a non-profit serving children and families in Hood River, Wasco and Klickitat Counties. She has been involved in many non-profit boards over the years and her hobbies include gardening, cooking and reading.

Joining Holli Francis as newly elected board members were Jim Foster, Bill Dickson and Jim McCreight; each have served on the board in the past, but love the museum so much, that they could not keep away! Also at the May 16 meeting, Laura Cheney, Byron Henry and Maureen Krebs were re-elected for a second three-year term, while David Savinar, Laura Muehleck, Kim McGinnis and Gwen Bassetti were elected to serve a third three-year term.

In addition to the previously mentioned appointments, the board also elected as President Laura Cheney, as Vice President Ian Grabenhorst, as Secretary Anne Avery and as Treasurer Bob Moco.

We are incredibly grateful for the dedication of our 24 volunteer trustees, who work tirelessly on behalf of the museum.

WASHINGTON MUSEUM ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING AT MARYHILL

JUNE 24-26, 2015

Maryhill is thrilled to host museum professionals, board members, volunteers, and supporters working in Washington museums during a three-day conference addressing issues in the field.

Panel topics will include collections management, audience development, exhibitions planning, capital projects, and much, much more. Participants will also have an opportunity to network with colleagues, tour Maryhill's ranchlands and nearby petroglyphs, sample local wines and even enjoy an authentic chuck wagon dinner.

Registration information at washingtonmuseumassociation.org.

BOARD NOMINATIONS

Are you or someone you know interested in setting the future course of Maryhill Museum of Art? Maryhill's Board of Trustees helps guide strategic planning, financial oversight and management, and is instrumental in ensuring a dynamic and vital future for the museum. Trustees also serve on committees devoted to collections, marketing, education, finance, grounds, audit, governance, fundraising and membership, executive and such ad hoc committees as necessary.

Trustees are elected at the museum's Annual Meeting. Pursuant to the Bylaws, the board may comprise no less than nine and no more than 25 members, with a majority residing in the State of Washington. The Governance Committee, subsequent to evaluation of qualifications and expertise, places candidates on the ballot for election to a three-year term. Maryhill Museum of Art members in good standing may nominate a candidate, or themselves, to the Board of Trustees by calling 509.773.3733 ext. 23 or emailing nominations@maryhillmuseum.org. The next meeting of the membership is in May 2016.

NEW BYLAWS AND AMENDED ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION ADOPTED

Over the last six months, the ad-hoc Bylaws Committee and the Board of Trustees carefully reviewed the museum's Bylaws and Articles of Incorporation to address concerns, deficiencies and needed changes to bring the documents up-to-date. Members approved and adopted the new Bylaws and revisions to the Articles of Incorporation at the May 16 annual meeting. Many thanks to the staff at Miller Nash Graham & Dunn LLP, who provided pro-bono assistance, and to the members of the Bylaws Committee and the board who were involved with the revisions.

Maryhill Arts Festival attracts artists of all kinds. This year the Maryhill Arts Festival is part of the museum's Car is King Weekend.

CALL FOR ARTISTS

Artists of the Pacific Northwest are invited to apply to participate in the 2015 Maryhill Arts Festival, taking place October 3 & 4, 2015 on the beautiful museum grounds.

Artists working in all 2D and 3D media, including but not limited to painting, drawing, printmaking, jewelry, ceramics, woodworking, fiber arts and glass, will be juried into the festival based on quality and creativity.

The festival has included an average of 50 artists exhibiting and selling work in a variety of media. Hands-on art activities for children and food booths make the weekend a well-attended and festive event.

Application deadline is August 1, 2015; more info and application materials available at maryhillmuseum.org/visit/calendar/special-events/car-is-king-weekend

WHAT IN THE SAM HILL? THE MARYHILL GALA

We've got a new name, but this annual bash will still deliver an evening filled with fun and frivolity to support Maryhill Museum of Art. With "Sam Hill" himself as master of ceremonies, you'll have a chance to bid on some of the region's most celebrated wines, enjoy a fabulous meal made with delicious local ingredients, and nab amazing auction lots, including a once-in-a-lifetime African photo safari, Pendleton Round-Up package, art tours in Seattle and Portland, beach getaways and much, much more. Period cars, including a 1919 Model-T, will chauffeur guests around the museum drive, adding a bit of 75th anniversary flair to the occasion! Join us overlooking the Columbia and under the stars for a night to remember.

SUMMER ART INSTITUTE: THE POWER OF PAPER

This five-day intensive program will strengthen your knowledge of art while integrating the visual arts into your lives—where you work, live and play. This year, we will focus on the power of paper—how it changed the way we communicate, keeps our stories, records our thoughts and gives our imaginations room to grow. Throughout the week we will explore works on paper from the written and printed word to dynamic visual expressions in pencil, pen, paint and much more. Through lectures, gallery talks, discussion groups, and hands-on activities, participants in the Summer Art Institute will analyze how people use paper to create works of art that touch our minds and hearts. The Institute is led by Maryhill's executive director, Colleen Schafroth and co-taught with poet Tim Barnes; the institute will also feature guest artists.

At last year's Summer Art Institute participants learned about sculpture.

Cost: $195 member / $215 non-member; to register call 509.773.3733 ext. 25 or email education@maryhillmuseum.org. For an additional cost 30 clock hours or 3 credit hours are available through Portland State University Graduate School of Education/Continuing Education.

Thursday, July 23, 6:30 to 8 p.m.

THE ART OF WOODCUT PRINTMAKING: AN ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY ANDREA RICH

Printmaker Andrea Rich will present an illustrated lecture about the woodcut—its traditions, complexity and process. She will also share her own work in the medium, which draws on print traditions as diverse as Albrecht Dürer and Japanese Ukiyo-e. Rich's distinctive prints result from carving from six to twenty blocks for one final image that conveys strong, clear impressions of life in all its diversity. Presented in connection with the exhibition An Abundance of Riches: Woodcuts of Andrea Rich.

Cost: FREE museum members / $5 non-members.
