

Dear Members,

Half of the museum's rich and vibrant season is behind us, with the other half rising ahead. Thankfully autumn is a lovely time to visit the Gorge, where you'll find mild temperatures, sunny skies and brilliant fall color — the perfect recipe for a weekend escape.

Our special exhibitions have received rave reviews this year. Visitors have thoroughly enjoyed exploring the world of American classical realism through the work of Richard Lack and his contemporaries.

We also have several special events on tap to tempt you into a visit. On September 22 we will present a Romanian Cultural Festival, celebrating the special relationship between Maryhill and Romania, forged through museum co-founder Queen Marie. On October 6 & 7, Car is King Weekend brings vintage autos and race cars to the grounds and along the Maryhill Loops Road. The Loops will also open to the public for auto use that weekend. See page 7 for more information.

Finally, on our closing weekend we will mark the 100th anniversary of Armistice Day. The end of World War I came with a sigh of relief and the hope that war might finally be behind us all. Like many, my grandfather served in the trenches as a member of the Irish Guard of the British Army, receiving several commendations. After the war, he immigrated to the United States where he raised his family and sought peace. Many didn't have that chance and it is fitting that we honor those on November 11 who died in the war that was to end all wars.

Please join us and our key partners the Society of the Honor Guard, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and Washington State Parks on November 11 for a very special program at at Stonehenge Memorial. See page 9 for all the details.

This season we've been exploring Classical Realism, a term coined in the early 1980s by artist Richard Lack to describe an artistic genre tracing its roots back to classical painting. The exhibitions that Maryhill has presented on Classical Realism have been well received and continue to awe and amaze visitors to the museum.

Richard F. Lack: The Interior Journey — Paintings, Drawings, and Studies

March 15 – November 15, 2018

Forty works by one of the most prolific American realists of the twentieth century. The series of large-scale imaginative paintings was created at the end of the artist's career and depict historical, religious, mythological, allegorical and symbolic subjects. The exhibition also includes a selection of conceptual and developmental sketches and drawings, offering a window into Lack's creative and technical processes.

Romanian Identity, Royalty and Architecture

September 5 -28, 2018

This photo essay surveys Romanian architecture from 1870 to 1948 with a focus on the Romanian royalty's contribution to the modernization of the country and creation of a national style. It was after WWI, when King Ferdinand and Queen Marie sponsored the implementation of the national style in their effort to put Romania on the map of the world. Emphasizing Queen Marie's contribution to Romanian architectural landmarks as well as her visit to the Pacific Northwest, the exhibit also presents monuments designed to celebrate the birth of Great Romania in 1918.

Join us September 22 for a special Romanian Cultural Festival. See page 8 for details.

The exhibition is presented in partnership with the American Romanian Cultural Society (ARCS), Romanian Cultural Institute, Centrul de Creație, Artă și Tradiție (CREART) and Cultural Romania Association. The exhibition is curated by Augustin Ioan, Ionel Stoicescu, Marius Marcu Lăpădat, Octavian Carabela and Roxana Lăpădat.

Special Exhibition in Romania Maryhill & Queen Marie's Visit

On August 15, a special exhibition, A Chapter of Romanian History in the Northwest of America – Queen Marie and Maryhill Museum of Art, opened at Sinaia City Museum housed in the historic Florescu-Știrbei Palace in Sinaia, Romania. More than 40 photographs presented the connection between Sinaia, Maryhill Museum of Art and Queen Marie of Romania, who dedicated Maryhill Museum of Art in 1926. The exhibition runs through September 15 and afterwards a smaller version will travel to Italy. It was organized by ASPE Asociația Socio-Culturală Prahova Excelsior Sinaia in partnership with the Maryhill Museum of Art, City Hall of Sinaia, and the Museum of Sinaia.

The curators, Stefan and Victor Ene, have deep roots in Sinaia and are currently students in 10th and 7th grade in Portland, Oregon. They collaborated with Maryhill staff to research and present this exhibition. At its opening, they presented a program about Queen Marie, the dedication of the museum and touched on the collections of Maryhill to a rapt audience of over fifty.

Commended for their careful research and selection of images from the archives at Maryhill, Stefan says "It was an amazing experience to learn about the rich collections located at the Maryhill Museum of Art, their connection to the city of Sinaia and to the most representative Queen of Romania. The great support coming from the Maryhill Museum enabled us to take the Romanian public on an imaginary journey following Queen Marie's footsteps in 1926 in North America. We learned a lot from this project and we hope that our collaboration with the Maryhill Museum of Art will continue."

Michael Oros, on the Board of Trustees at Maryhill Museum of Art, helped the Enu-Pietrosanu family make the connection to Maryhill.

Romanian Cultural Festival Celebrates Museum Ties

Celebrate the centennial of Romania's Great Union, the 1918 unification of Transylvania, and the provinces of Bessarabia and Bukovina with the Romanian Kingdom.

We will commemorate key historical events that reshaped Romanian identity, focusing on Maryhill co-founder Queen Marie's contribution to the outcome of World War I and the ensuing period of unequalled cultural effervescence in the region. Admission free at the museum on September 22.

The festival is sponsored and presented by the Romanian American Society, the American Romanian Cultural Society, the Romanian Cultural Institute and the Northwest Romanian Community.

SCHEDULE:

Sample Romania Fare | noon to 2:30 p.m.

Enjoy tastes of traditional Romanian foods. Cannon Power Plaza. Hosted by members of the Romanian community in Portland.

Music and Dance | noon to 2:30 p.m.

Watch folk dance and music performances by Seattle's Romanian Folkloric Ensemble, Datina, St. Mary's Youth Group from Portland and singer Romeo Cristea on the Cannon Power Plaza. Emcee will be Michael Oros, president of the Romanian American Society and member of Maryhill's Board of Trustees.

Hands on Art | 10 a.m. to 2 p.m

Cut and decorate your own version of Queen Marie's crown, place symbols of Romanian culture on a life-sized paper copy of Queen Marie's gown on exhibit at Maryhill, create your own Romanian yarn doll, or try your hand at embroidery using traditional Romanian patterns. And if that wasn't enough, enjoy a game of beanbag toss — through a cut out of Romania! You can also make a Romanian flag to show your love of Romania!

Romanian Folkloric Ensemble Datina practicing at Maryhill in 2016 prior to one of their performances.

Pelișor Castle and Queen Marie | 2:45 p.m.

Veteran's Day Program at Stonehenge Memorial Marks 100th Anniversary of Armistice Day

On the 11th hour, of the 11th day, of the 11th month in 2018 people worldwide will mark the 100th anniversary of Armistice Day, pausing to recognize those who sacrificed and those who will sacrifice in the defense of freedom and democracy.

We will commemorate the occasion at Stonehenge Memorial, laying a wreath in remembrance of the sacrifices made by so many of our countrymen and women, including the 14 men from Klickitat County memorialized there. The men honored at Stonehenge Memorial are James Henry Allyn, Charles Auer, Dewey V. Bromley, John W. Cheshier, William O. Clary, Evan Childs, James D. Duncan, Harry Gotfredson, Robert F. Graham, Louis Leidl, Carl A. Lester, Edward Lindblad, Henry O. Piendl and Robert F. Venable. These men, all members of the American Expeditionary Forces, represented the U.S. Army (Cavalry, Coast Artillery, Engineers and Infantry), U.S. Marines and the U.S. Navy.

The commemorations will start with music, followed by a brief history of the Stonehenge Memorial and a chance to learn about each of the 14 veterans who served in the American Expeditionary Forces during World War I. There will be speeches — including the reading of a proclamation by Rhona Sen Hoss on behalf of Governor Inslee — and a wreath laying, National Salute, taps, and planting of red poppies. A reception will follow the ceremony at the Maryhill Museum of Art.

A number of volunteers and veteran, government and service clubs in the Columbia River Gorge are assisting. Key partners are the Society of the Honor Guard, Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, Washington State Parks and Maryhill Museum of Art. Sponsors include the Washington Generals and John and Laura Cheney. Additional support is from the City of Goldendale and the Goldendale Chamber of Commerce.

William and Catherine Dickson Sculpture Garden — an Oasis on the Plateau

Maryhill's unique and memorable setting is one of the things that distinguishes it from other museums. From the amazing views of Mount Hood and the Columbia Gorge to the distinct landforms of the eastern plateau — there's a lot to take in. Among the many things to tempt the eye beyond the front door is the museum's growing collection of outdoor sculpture.

With 18 sculptures currently sited on the museum's grounds, visitors can see works by noted Northwest artists such as James Lee Hansen, Brad Cloepfil, Alisa Looney and Mel Katz. A recent gift to the collection was James Lee Hansen's Winter Rider Variation in 2017. William and Catherine Dickson made it possible for the museum to acquire the sculpture which had been on loan since the dedication of the Mary and Bruce Stevenson Wing in 2012.

Even though all of the works are designed for outdoor installation, the museum's climate — dry, windy summers and harsh winters — can take a toll. This summer Maryhill's collections manager Anna Goodwin worked with conservator Robert Kreuger to clean several of the works.

The sculpture being cleaned here is Julian Voss-Andreae, Quantum Man, 2007, steel, 98" x 50", Gift of Connie and Jack Bloxom; Collection of Maryhill Museum of Art

"Maryhill is ideal for showing large scale works," says Curator of Art Steve Grafe. "People love the views and having artwork outdoors gives yet another reason for visitors to wander the grounds and enjoy the beautiful setting."

As the museum's outdoor sculpture collection continues to grow, there are plans to update signage throughout the garden and create an interpretative map that can be easily accessed using a smart phone.

If you are interested in learning more about opportunities to support this project, please contact Colleen Schafroth at 509.773.3733 ext. 23 or by email at colleen@maryhillmuseum.org.

Fall Brings Museum Learning Opportunities for Regional Students

High School Museum Day: Reading Rodin

Wednesday, September 19, 2018

10:15 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Program repeats Oct. 17 & Nov. 7

Dates are Flexible

This is a unique experience designed especially for high school art students. Participants will learn about museum careers, take a guided tour of the museum's masterworks with an eye toward artist intent and technique, and end the day with a sketching session in the Rodin Gallery guided by artist Suzanne Krol-Boller. This is a fantastic opportunity for serious art students to further develop their portfolios.

Students also will receive a coupon for a free return visit to Maryhill (for four people), and are encouraged to use this opportunity to continue their sketching experience independently.

On their visit students will:

Tour Experience: "Reading" the Masters: Looking at Art for Understanding, Technique and Impact

This tour will engage students in reading the symbolic language used by artists, not unlike deciphering a text message! Additionally, time will be spent introducing the myriad of career opportunities in the museum field.

Lunch

Students will enjoy a boxed lunch from the museum's cafe.

Maryhill features a gallery of more than 80 works by the French master Auguste Rodin. Students will have an opportunity to experience a unique figure drawing experience in the Rodin gallery led by artist Suzanne Krol-Boller. From blocking to final drawing, students will be inspired to look carefully and coached to expand their observational and sketching talents.

Registration: Please contact Curator of Education Louise Palermo to make a reservation at 509-773-3733 ext. 25 or email louise@maryhillmuseum.org. The program, for up to 20 students, includes an application for bus reimbursement for $250, all supplies, boxed lunch, and a free pass (for four) for each student to return to the museum.

Sponsored by The Tia Palermo and Jess Ravich Trust.

Fall Museum Week: Gesture

October 2, 3, 4, 9, 10 & 11, 2018

9:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Immerse your 3rd and 4th grade students in thinking and discovery through hands-on activities, gallery tours and group discussions.

Line plays a dynamic role in art. It conveys mood, motion, drama and can drive a narrative. Students will tour the collections for a closer look at the many ways artists use line to express their ideas. They will explore movement of the human figure and create a drawing of their own. Mime Albert Alter will be introduce students to the art of mime and mime illusions as a form of storytelling through gesture.

This program is designed for students in 3rd and 4th grade. Cost: $3.00 per student; schools provide one chaperone per 10 students.

Maryhill Museum of Art wishes to thank the following for their support of the museum's Spring or Fall Museum Week: Bank of Eastern Oregon, Columbia Bank, Cross Three Foundation, Barbara and Rob McCormick, SoundRIDER, Umatilla Electric Cooperative, Wildhorse Foundation and the Windy Flats Wind Farm. Support such as this allows Maryhill to better serve students throughout the region.

Member Spotlight: Michael Oros

Michael Oros vividly remembers his first visit to Maryhill. It was 1990 and his family had just immigrated to the United States from Romania. To get to know their adopted country, they embarked on a coast-to-coast road trip. Returning to Portland along I-84, they saw Maryhill from across the river.

“We were just drawn to it, without knowing anything about it,” he recalls. They ventured over the bridge to the museum and were astounded by what they found.

“The Romanian connection was an extremely pleasant surprise. Seeing part of Queen Marie’s throne, her wedding dress and the replica of her crown, was like finding a piece of Romania out in the west. It was almost like stepping back into our home country. It also made me thirsty to understand what drew Queen Marie to this area.”

In Romania Oros had grown up near Bran Castle, the summer residence of Queen Marie, so he already had an affinity for her. At Maryhill it came full circle: he learned that Queen Marie had come all the way to Portland in 1926, stopping at Maryhill, just like his family was doing that day.

After college Oros started working for Intel and became involved with the Romanian community, serving as president of the Romanian American Society for 11 years. At Maryhill’s 70th anniversary celebration, he was invited to address the members and in 2012 joined the museum’s Board of Trustees.

While the Queen Marie Gallery remains close to his heart, Oros says the Théâtre de la Mode exhibition and the Sam Hill Room are favorites as well.

“I really enjoy the maps, all the information on Hill’s business ventures, and international trade in the region,” he says. “The business mind of Sam Hill really comes through when you look at the information in that room.”

Not surprisingly, Oros enjoys making connections in the museum’s exhibitions.

“I really enjoy the breadth of the collection and variety in the Native American Gallery. I find it very interesting and close to me from a Romanian cultural perspective, because we also have a lot of weaving and similar traditions. The use of wood and basket-weaving, we do a lot of that in Romania, as well as the practicality and connection to nature in the two cultures. While it’s two continents apart and more than 5,000 miles, you can still find similarities.”

Another opportunity Oros sees for cultural connection is through the Romanian community in the greater Portland and Vancouver area, which numbers more than 30,000.

“When you include the Seattle area, the Pacific Northwest Romanian community is well over 50,000,” he says. “Romanians are proud to be a part of Maryhill’s history. Through events like the Romanian Cultural Festival, we can share the Romanian spirit and culture, our music, food and dancing, rejoice as community and share it with our adopted American community. This year, on the occasion of the great union of Romania, it’s even more of a special occasion for us to share our culture with our adopted country.”

Maryhill Flourishes Because of You!

On November 15, we will latch our doors for the winter and turn our attention to readying the galleries and programs for 2019. While there is always plenty of activity behind-the-scenes during our off season, it always feels like something is missing. And there is.

Without visitors, Maryhill is just a building. The collections go unseen, there are no education programs, no lectures, no workshops, and no school groups breathing life into the galleries.

There are many ways that Maryhill touches and connects visitors of all ages and backgrounds. You can see it in the gleam in a third grader's eye, a warm look by a grandfather with his grandson, or a blaze of understanding when a visitor sees an incredible piece of art for the first time.

Not only does the public enliven the museum, we are only able to do what we do because of you. Your support and your presence meant a great deal to all of us here at Maryhill.

Only a fraction of our operating expenses are covered through admission and membership revenue. To produce quality exhibitions and engaging programs year-after-year, we depend on gifts from friends like you. Your support is critical.

We know Maryhill holds a special place in your heart; that you value the museum and the role it plays as a cultural hub for the Columbia River Gorge and beyond.

With that in mind, please consider making a gift as we close out our 2018 season.

Your support at any level — $50, $100, $500 or more, if you are able — will ensure that we continue to be the museum you, and the region, deserve.

For your convenience, we have included a gift envelope in this issue of the member newsletter.

If you'd like to discuss sponsorship opportunities, a special gift of stock, or gifts to the endowment or special programs, please contact Colleen Schafroth, Executive Director at 509-773-3733 x 23 or colleen@maryhillmuseum.org.

Thank you for your support!

Louise Palermo Receives Washington Museum Educator Award

The Washington Art Education Association recently recognized the contributions of Maryhill’s Curator of Education, Louise Palermo, awarding her the Museum Educator of 2018.

“This is a great honor for Lou and the museum,” says Executive Director Colleen Schafroth. “We are excited about the new educational programs and partnerships Lou is establishing. It’s fantastic that her efforts are gaining notice.”

Louise joined the staff of Maryhill in 2016. She has an impressive and diverse background in museum education, having worked at such institutions as Arkansas Art Center in Little Rock, Great Lakes Science Center in Cleveland, Ohio, the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, and for the J. Paul Getty Center in Los Angeles.

Since joining Maryhill she has shepherded new programs such as the High School Museum Day and Tango at Maryhill and has introduced Discover for families. Louise has also initiated new museum partnerships with the Washington Arts Education Association, the Oregon Arts Education Association, The Dalles Art Center and expanded the The Dalles-Wasco County Public Library and the Fort Vancouver Regional Library System partnerships to add Library Storytime at the museum.

Garden Volunteers Needed

Many hands make light work in the museum's gardens. Do you enjoy working outdoors or have a passion for gardening? Would you like to share your passion with others? Maryhill seeks volunteers who would like to make a difference in the gardens. Some of the tasks we need help with include: orienting visitors and providing information about the cultural history, natural resources, flora, and fauna at Maryhill; assisting with education programs in the gardens; collecting data and condition assessments; maintaining signage; lawn and irrigation maintenance, weeding, pruning; servicing vehicles and equipment. Training and materials will be provided. For more information, contact: Mike Clough, Caretaker, at 509-773-3733 x 32 or email at mike@maryhillmuseum.org
